mate of that gentleman is very different from that which is placed upon him by the intelligent voters of the Ashland District—not only of that district, but of the State of Kentucky and of the Union. But to quiet the gentleman's nerves (which seem to be disordered) let me inform him that Maj. Breckinridge is not a candidate for nomination at Baltimore. Possibly, however, his assent on Maj. R. is intended as an indirect complaint against the Legislature for having elected him to the United States Senate in winter. If such is his object why not avow frankly, I am here ready to account for my own vote in that matter. I voted for Breckinridge, because, I was chosen by a very large majority on the first ballot in caucus, and afterwards received the unanimous vote of the Democratic members of the Legislature. In voting for him I not only voted my own preference for Senator in Congress, but likewise the preference of a very large majority of my own constituents.

In conclusion, allow me to say that if the object of this meeting is simply to endeavor to elect a man to the Senate, the union of the

Rescue of a Child Captured by Indians
A letter from Fort Buchanan, New Mexico, dated March 26th, gives the following interesting account of the recovery from the Indians of a beautiful Mexican child, ten years of age, by Captain B. B. Ford, September 25, 1875.

The Indians [Apaches] carried off two female prisoners, one a woman, whom they lanced and left for dead, and the other a little Mexican girl ten years of age. The child was finally given up to Capt. Ewell in exchange for some Indian prisoners, and he had the great pleasure of returning her to her family. She is a remarkably interesting little thing, and very intelligent. When the exchange was made, Captain Ewell was one hundred miles in the Indian country.

with only twenty dragoons. The Indians approached his camp in a large body, but he rebuffed them and told them not to come in until the morning. The girl should be given up. They had her with them, but kept her concealed. To attempt to take her by force would, of course, have been a sacrifice her. Finally the Indians decided to make the proposed exchange, came close to camp and suddenly exposed her to view. The procession as it then came in, in life, leading the girl, struggling to conceal her emotion at the release, from the Indians.

The length of time that we had been anxious looking for this child, and the new scene through which we had passed, made such an impression pression that one could not help taking more than usual interest in her, and feeling acutely the fate that almost certainly awaits her if among her Mexican people. The captivity was owing to her great wish to learn American customs having caused her to prevail on her people to allow her to visit the family of an American. She said when she saw the Indians coming she ran into the house and told Mrs. Page, who was combing her hair, and who told her it was such thing, that she was always afraid of Indians etc. The little girl, however, repeated that was so, and that she was going, and it is generally believed that for the two hundred yards before she was overtaken by the Indians she made her fastest time. The Indians caught and at rats in their retreat, and she said they gave her the head of one, and that while a captive her diet was like theirs, almost solely "puris verbos," or nothing but weeds. When being carried off she exhibited a presence of mind beyond her years for notwithstanding the Indians packed her off their heads until they got her into their own country—stopping only where there was tur-

she continued to leave traces by tearing off pieces of her dress and leaving them on the road and whenever there was an opportunity, reaching out from the path and leaving a marked impression of her little foot.

COURTS IN KENTUCKY.

Mr. Nelson—I move that the bill be put upon its passage. It is a bill of local importance to the State of Kentucky. I have been trying for several weeks to get a chance of having it passed.

Mr. Mallory—I hope there will be no objection.

The Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

Mr. Mallory—It is to be put upon its passage.
The Speaker—The Chair asked if there was any objection, and the Chair heard none. The bill is, therefore, regularly before the House.
Mr. Simms—I desired to get the attention of the Chair—
The bill was read. It provides for the holding of the District Court in the city of Louisville commencing on the fourth Monday in April and the fourth Monday in September in each year.

and also for the holding of a special term at the said city of Louisville at such other times as the District Court may appoint; also, for the holding of the District Court in Covington on the second Mondays in January and September in each year and a special term at such other time as the District Court may appoint; also, for the holding of a term of the District Court at Paducah.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time.

Mr. Burnett moved the previous question on

The latter motion was agreed to.

A QUEER CASE—ADULTERY, PRIMERY AND LARCENY.—Yesterday morning, Auguste Faerber, a German, was bound over by the Police Judge for trial on a charge of grand larceny. In the afternoon, he was held by Esquire Bell to answer a charge of adultery, preferred against him by Francis Gerling, who alleged that the prisoner had been living in adultery with his wife, Anna. Upon inquiry, it was stated that the prisoner appeared to have assumed the rights of the prosecuting witness with his consent. After being held to bail, Faerber was pressed a desire to prefer a charge of perjury against Gerling, on the following basis: He says that at the time he was naturalized, Gerling swore that he had known him (Faerber) five years when he really knew him but two. The charge will be made, and perhaps both parties will find themselves seriously involved.—(Cin. Com.)

How could a people, who have a revolution once in four years, who have contrived the bowie knife and the revolver, who have chewed the juice out of all the superlatives in the language in Fourth of July orations, and so used up its epithets in the rhetoric of abuse, that it takes two great quarto dictionaries to supply the demand which insists in sending out yachts and horses and boys, to outsalt, outrun, outlight and checkmate all the rest of creation?

What wonder that the stars and stripes wave on the sides of ninety grains of sulphate of quinine and that the American eagle screams with delight to see three drams of colonel given at a single mouthful?"

LEXINGTON AND SOUTHERN KENTUCKY RAILROAD.—We are much gratified to announce the organization of this new company at Danville, on the 6th inst. Charles Caldwell, Esq., was elected President, and J. W. Caldwell, Esq., Vice-President.

The early completion of this road to the Kentucky river, to which it is already graded from Nicholasville, will ensure its rapid construction to Danville via Harrodsburg, for then, Boyle, Mercer, Lincoln, and other counties, will be convinced of its success and inestimable value.—Thence its continuance to our southern border so as to put us in connection with the South Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico, will be a fixed fact.—[Lex. MORRISSE AND UNNATURAL CRIME.—On Friday of last week, the residence of one John Hackett, a farmer in prosperous circumstances, located about nine miles from St. Louis, took fire, and was burnt to the ground. While the flames were raging, Hackett was seized with the belief that the building had been fired by his son, a lad five years old, and picking the little fellow up he threw him into the flames. The child was almost immediately rescued by the bystanders, but his legs, arms, and other por-

1877 The prospects for a crop in this county were never more flattering than at the present time, if we except wheat, of which there will not be more than one-third of the usual amount. We were informed, a few days since, by one of the best farmers in Middle Tennessee, that he had not seen such prospects for twenty years.—

—We regret to learn that "American," a splendid stallion, belonging to Mr. Wm. Vimont, of Williamsburg, Ky., died of lung fever, a few days ago. He was valued at $4,000, and was raised by our fellow-citizen Thomas H. Clay, Esq.—[Lexington Obs. & Rep.]
